

Narragansett Parks & Recreation and Rhode Island Rivers Council present...

the 6th annual

Environmental Awareness Day

at Narragansett Town Beach

July 18th, 10am - 2pm

For the sixth consecutive year, this event will take place on the beach and will offer information and fun activities to promote an awareness of Rhode Island's natural resources and environmental organizations.

Environmental groups are invited to participate. Groups will be provided with appropriate space to conduct an activity, set-up a display or tell people about your organization. The Town will advertise and promote the event. Activities could include a display, hand-outs, activity on the beach or in the water, or anything your organization would like to do with the public. There is no fee to participate.

This is a great opportunity to tell Rhode Islanders about the important work of our organizations. Approximately 10,000 people visit this beach on a summer Saturday and they are always keen to participate in the activities offered.
